Sir:

RESPONSE TO RESTRICTION REQUIREMENT

Applicant respectfully disagrees with and requests reconsideration of the restriction requirement dated June 10, 2004. In the restriction requirement, the Office identified eight different species and stated that no claim was considered generic. The identified species are as follows:

- A - injector with a cap;
- B - injector with a valve;
- C - injector may include an injection chamber;
- D - reservoir may be housed within the injector body;
- E - utilizing a separate fluid reservoir;
- F - motor driven stop;
- G - where the distal region 22 is angled relative to rest of effector; and
- H - end effector measure between four and ten inches.

The requirement is improper because none of the features identified in the species listing are part of the claimed invention. In other words, the claims neither require nor exclude the features. Specifically, the claims neither require nor exclude: (A) an injector with a cap; (B) an injector with a valve; (C) an injector with an injection chamber; (D) that the reservoir be housed within the injector body; (E) a separate fluid reservoir; (F) a motor driven stop; (G) a distal region angled relative to the rest of the end effector; or (H) that the end effector measures between four and ten inches. Accordingly, all of the claims are generic and the restriction requirement should be withdrawn. Although applicant strongly disagrees with the propriety of the requirement, applicant nonetheless provisionally elects Species C, as required by 37 C.F.R. § 1.143. Should a telephone interview assist in furthering prosecution of this application, the examiner is invited to telephone the undersigned attorney of record.
